These footnotes to the news have been gathered by reporters for The Washington Post:

Abe Fortas definitely won't be rejoining the law firm he left four years ago to go on the Supreme Court.

The former Justice and the Arnold & Porter firm reached the decision "amicably," his former partners say. Fortas' wife, tax expert Carolyn Aggar, will continue with the firm.

Fortas' plans: Not firm, but they include a book, possibly teaching and some lecturing.

Arms 'Sufficiency' Defined

Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard shrugged his shoulders the other day when asked how much was enough in the way of armaments.

The President, he was reminded, had said that his goal was simply a "sufficiency" of arms. What did that mean?

"It means," said Packard, "that it's a good word to use in a speech. Beyond that it doesn't mean a God-damned thing."
